ARDSCOIL Mhuire has announced that large-scale plans to redevelop their campus in Corbally have taken a significant step forward. The secondary school, which had an enrolment of just under 600 students, has been approved to go to tender for the appointment of the Design Team. This stage is expected to be completed towards the end of May. Principal Brid Heron (pictured second from left) said: "This exciting development, which sees the construction of a brand new multi-million euro school on the current campus, will ensure that we remain at the heart of our community, continuing to provide the best education possible to our students for decades to come."

A DEEPLY distressed man who fled the war in Ukraine only to become lost in Limerick City was helped by members of two local voluntary groups.

The man, aged in his 50s, was found last week by the men of the Limerick Treaty Suicide Prevention (LTSF) group. He was injured and in a distressed state, with no English, no money and a broken phone.

"He was very frightened. He had no idea where he was," Josephine Corbett of LTSF told the Limerick Post.

Limerick artist to sell painting for Red Cross

by Bernie English

THE oil on canvas painting depicts vivid representations of Ukrainian people, dressed in their national colours. But overhead is darkness in the shape of Russian helicopters intent on raining destruction on the scene below.

The painting is the work of Doolin-based artist David Murphy who is planning to sell it to raise funds for the Ukrainian Red Cross appeal.

David created the 3ft by 4ft work in response to a call out on from members of the Irish Artists Facebook page to donate pieces of art to raise funds to support the Ukrainian people.

The group's appeal for artwork met with a big response and so far, more than 100 works have been donated.

Describing the painting, David told the Limerick Post: "The people in it are terrified – they're running and they don't know where to go, while the Russian helicopter is there to kill them."

It took David four days of intense work to complete the painting.

An amateur artist, David says this work is not in his usual style but the horror and gravity of the situation shaped it.

"This is a very serious situation, certainly for the people of Ukraine but that could turn into World War Three and then we are all in it."

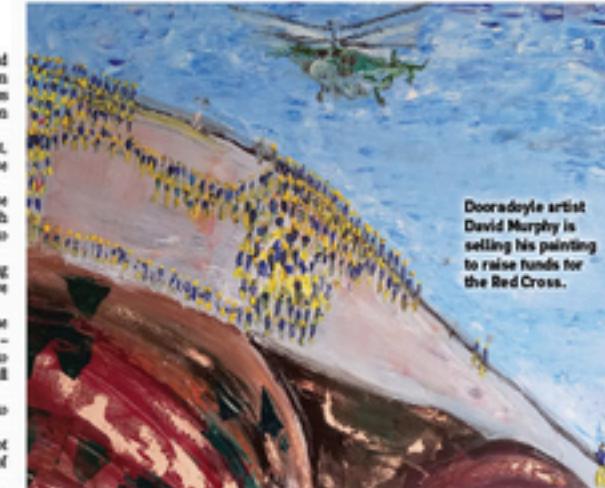

"I'm hoping that people will be moved to donate to the Red Cross even if they are not going to buy a painting," said David.

He has not put any particular price on the work, but hopes that offers will be generous. "People can make the cheque out to the Red Cross. I don't want a penny from that," he said.

Anyone interested in purchasing the painting can contact David at dave.murphy@gmail.com.

Adapt funding

ADAPT domestic abuse services has been granted €90,000 as part of a funding package announced this week by Minister for Justice Helen McEntee TD. Funding totalling €4.6m has been allocated to more than 60 organisations to support victims of crime. Funding will provide support, information and advice on the rights of victims, as well as counselling services, court accompaniment and other accompaniment. Training and awareness raising of domestic, sexual and gender-based violence is also funded.

Phone scam

A 65-year-old woman in Askeaton was the victim of a scam after a phone-call from a冒充者 pretending to be from her broadband technical department. The caller outlined that there had been a problem with broadband in the area and the company were willing to reimburse her. The lady was asked to provide bank account details and follow steps to download an app which gave the caller remote access to her phone and online banking. "The lady knew nothing until she was contacted by her financial institution and informed that an attempt was made to withdraw €240 from her account," Sgt Ber Leetch of Henry Street gardaí explained.

Hairbrushes and a helping hand for refugees

SHANNON councillor Sharon Benson has asked the Council for a timeline for an active travel needs assessment of the Condell Road, which is currently being tendered. She also asked when a footpath from the new housing development at Meirion to the Cloonmacnoise roundabout will be installed. She was informed by Director of Service, Brian Kennedy, that the needs assessment and options report that will be provided by the successful tenderer will require approval by the National Transport Authority (NTA) before funding is allocated to it. "It is not possible to give a date for construction at this stage," he explained.

WILLIAM would say of us without a hairbrush? It's something so basic, yet for many of the Ukrainian refugees who have arrived in Limerick, it's something they don't have.

A new shop providing free clothes, toiletries, toys and importantly, information and a friendly face, is open for business in the city to assist newly-arrived Ukrainians.

Help for Ukraine organiser Anna Masicka and a team of volunteers have set up the facility in a room made available at the Sacred Heart church at the Crosses.

"We need hairbrushes – we go through dozens of them – and know in Dublin where they believed friends or family were staying.

Once they had established what language he spoke, they were able to use a phone translation app to communicate.

"We drove him straight to the address in Tallaght and when he knocked on the door, it was immediately obvious that the people there knew him. We just ended in relief. He couldn't thank us enough," said Josephine.

As a result of the encounter, the pair team now have a list of contacts for translators who speak many languages, should they need them in the future.

But what LTSF needs most right now is a base to work from. They have signed leases with Limerick Land Search Team and Haven Hub with all three willing to share one base if they can get one.

"We drove him straight to the address in Tallaght and when he knocked on the door, it was immediately obvious that the people there knew him. We just ended in relief. He couldn't thank us enough," said Josephine.

"This just highlights another reason that we need a base. We dressed that man's injuries and spent two hours with him at the side of the road if we had somewhere to go we could at least have brought him in to sit down and have a cup of tea while we tried to get him sorted," said Josephine.

Josephine and Calum decided that the best course to help the lost man was to drive him to an address he knew in Dublin where they believed friends or family were staying.
